

NDLA Past President's Report
December 2007

It's been a quiet quarter for me, which has been welcome with the other activities going on at my library. In the past three months for NDLA I have:

--written a brief article for the Good Stuff promoting the NDLA awards and seeking nominations for those awards

--contacted Cheryl Tollefson in Dickinson to determine if she has heard any additional information from the sales coordinator of the Grand Dakota Lodge regarding a contract for the 2009 conference

--with State Librarian Doris Ott presented Dr. James Carlson with his plaque for the NDLA Benefactor of the Year Award at the grand opening of the Carlson Branch of the Fargo Public Library and arranged for photographs to be taken of the event.

I was not aware that there was a box of files for the past-president, and thus did not seek it out at the end of the conference in Jamestown. There have been some emails back & forth about it, but I have not heard that anyone has located it.
